ANACOSTIA.

For the purpose of securing additional funds to promote the public flag raising to take place at Logan Park September 30 the committee of the Anacostia Citizens' Association having the matter in charge decided at a meeting held last evening to invite all the residents of Anacostia to contribute. A request to that end is to be sent to each resident, and boxes are to be placed in three drug stores in the town where subscriptions may be placed, provided the druggists agree to this plan. Mrs. Streeter of Washington will deliver a recitation at the flag raising. The pole will probably be set in place the early part of next week.

Commander A. B. Frisbie of John A. Logan Post, G. A. R., of Anacostia, one organization which is assisting the association in this matter and which will conduct similar exercises at the Episcopal Home for Children at Hillbright on the same afternoon and evening. The board of directors of the home at a meeting held yesterday decided to postpone the event owing to the fact that so many who would care to take part would be out of the city at that time.

The board of directors of the Capital Traction Company has decided that it would not be advisable to extend its system to Anacostia at the present time and have so notified the citizens' association. An effort will still be made to induce the company to reconsider. The association requested that it be given the right to run a street car from M street southeast, through M street to 11th street and down 11th street to Anacostia. Another route has been suggested also across the Pennsylvania Avenue bridge and along Minnesota Avenue to Anacostia. In this matter the association will have the cooperation of the Handie Highlands Association, which is at present endeavoring to secure this extension.

Miss Edith M. Pyles of 1 street has returned to her home from Atlantic City. Mrs. Thomas F. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Hoopes, Dr. B. A. Pyles, George Haines and J. W. Bartley returned from Piney Point, Md., where they have been spending the summer.

Mr. Edward Westcott of the Handie Highlands entertained the members of the Willing Workers' Club of the Garden Memorial Presbyterian Church at his residence yesterday afternoon. The brotherhood of this church met last evening at the residence of Mr. Westcott. This body is taking an active interest in the movement to close stores in Anacostia Sunday.

The Young Men's Catholic Club of St. Teresa's Church gave its initial dance Thursday evening in the assembly room of St. Teresa's School, with a large number of guests. The dance was assisted by other members of the club. It is proposed to give several similar dances during the season.

The car line in Anacostia was tied up for a while last evening, one of the cars having the trouble at the transfer station on Nichols Avenue near Talbert street. The car was running on the switch when it became deranged.

PLANS LONG FLIGHT

Peck May Go in Aeroplane to Harrisburg, Pa.

EXPERIMENTS WITH MOTOR

Exhibitions Will Be Given With the Rex Smith Machine at Pennsylvania Capital.

It is possible that the new Rex Smith aeroplane, which is due to give exhibitions in Harrisburg, Pa., next week, may be flown from Washington to the Pennsylvania capital under its own power. This may be made necessary by the failure of the railroad to furnish a car for the transportation of the aeroplane.

The machine was given its initial flight at College Park yesterday afternoon and was found to be all right, barring a few minor adjustments. It had been intended to put a new Hall-Scott motor into the plane. This is one of the V-shaped, eight-cylinder motors.

Instead of that, Emile Berliner, who is a member of the company, sent one of the new revolving cylinder motors to try out. This was installed with a French propeller and the machine given a flight by Paul Peck, the young aviator who had returned to Washington for the occasion. As the new motor is a different shape from the one that has been used, it is telling where the center of gravity would be when it was installed, and after a flight or two the position of the motor was changed to improve the machine. More flights will be made by Peck this afternoon if the weather is favorable.

The machine is due to begin a series of flights in Harrisburg, Pa., Tuesday, as there was no car available for shipping it. It was proposed to put it on a truck and to take it to Harrisburg by automobile. Peck said this would be a waste of time, and would not be particularly good for the machine, anyway, and that he would rather fly it to Harrisburg in time for the flights. The result is that if the motor works as well as has been promised the young aviator will fill up his tanks and start the aeroplane for the exhibition field Monday morning.

Going to Long Island Meet.

It is not likely that there will be more than one flight of the government machine at College Park this afternoon. Mr. Peck is expected to make a short flight before starting for New York, where he will participate in the meet at the Nassau boulevard, Long Island, Capt. Beck and Lieut. Arnold also expect to compete in that meet.

After the meet the army aviators will decide whether the College Park school shall be closed for the winter, whether flying shall be continued there as weather permits, or whether the school shall be moved to some place in the south for the cold season.

WEEPS FOR FOSTER MOTHER.

Boy Learns Real Relationship Only When Taken Into Court.

When nine-year-old Frank Higgins discovered in the juvenile court yesterday afternoon that Mrs. Benjamin F. Higgins, his foster mother, who died several months ago, was not his real mother, the child wept bitterly. He was on the bench before Judge De Lacy and wept as if his heart would break. The realization that the dead Mrs. Higgins was not his own mother utterly prostrated the child.

"The boy was brought into court at the instance of his foster sister, Mrs. May Rugg, of 32 Tennessee Avenue, for the purpose of having him committed to the board of children's guardians. "After my mother died Frank came to my home to live. I have three little children of my own—about all I can properly care for—and I feel that this boy should be raised by some charitable institution or the District," Mrs. Rugg told the court. She said her mother had taken the child to rear, when he was about nine days old, from a local infant asylum. What the name of the asylum was or who the boy's parents were, Mrs. Rugg was unable to inform the court.

I have three little children of my own—about all I can properly care for—and I feel that this boy should be raised by some charitable institution or the District," Mrs. Rugg told the court. She said her mother had taken the child to rear, when he was about nine days old, from a local infant asylum. What the name of the asylum was or who the boy's parents were, Mrs. Rugg was unable to inform the court.

Judge De Lacy refused to comply with Mrs. Rugg's request until all means of finding out who Frank's parents were had failed. He continued the case until today in order to summon the boy's foster father to court. It is believed he might throw some light on the child's parentage. The little fellow was comforted by Judge De Lacy and court attendants. Mrs. Rugg was instructed to care for him until the case was finally disposed of.

MUST SUPPORT HIS WIFE.

Reginald Carlisle's Good Intentions Do Not Pay Road.

Reginald Carlisle of 1251 Hamilton street, Brookland, D. C., pleaded for the dismissal of a non-support charge against him in the juvenile court yesterday because, as he told Judge De Lacy, he had recently become a religious man, possessed a fine, silvery tenor voice, just the thing for a church choir, and had ceased drinking some time ago. The charge was filed against Carlisle by his wife, Mrs. Viola Carlisle, who told the court that failing to support had become a habit with her husband in the past year.

"I'm a different man now, your honor. I'm a religious man—a genuinely good man," Carlisle told the court. "I've a splendid tenor voice," he added, "one that would adorn any church choir. Give me a chance to use it in hymns of praise."

"Delighted to know of your good voice and to hear you propose to put it to use," said Judge De Lacy. "But is that going to support your wife?" he asked after a pause.

Carlisle reflected for a moment for an answer, but made no reply.

"Pay her $11 a week and keep up the good intentions," suggested the court. He was released under a suspended workhouse sentence.

INJUNCTION IS DISSOLVED

Court Decides Mrs. Marie L. B. Baldwin May Visit Home of Her Father.

Justice Gould has dissolved the injunction by which he recently restrained Mrs. Marie L. B. Baldwin from visiting the home of her father, Joel B. Bottineau, an Indian claims agent. The father noted an appeal to the Court of Appeals and gave a supersedeas bond of $500 to act as a stay of the court's order which allowed the daughter to return.

Mr. Bottineau claimed he had purchased premises 212 A street northwest with money borrowed from his daughter on the agreement to reimburse her from the proceeds of certain claims then pending. He says the daughter advanced $2,500 and he avers he repaid her $7,000, an excess of $4,500. Recently, he claimed, she took up her residence at his home and treated him so "unfilially" that she destroyed the peace and comfort of his home.

Daughter's Answer.

In her answer, filed by Attorneys Maddox & Gately and J. P. McMahon, the daughter says the property belongs to her and was purchased by her. She denies any agreement with her father, and declared she bought the house because her father had lived there many years and was attached to it. Since the purchase, she avers, her father has lived in the house and paid no rent.

Mrs. Baldwin admits receiving $5,000 from a claim of her father's, but says it was paid under an assignment executed by her father for a valuable consideration. Other moneys received have been accounted for to Mr. Bottineau, the daughter states.

Not only respect but affection for her father, she says, prompted her to purchase the house. She says she has been troubled with her father's behavior since the purchase, and that she has been treated with "unfilial" conduct.

The defendant says she was glad to have her father occupy the house as long as she owns it, provided he does not dispute her ownership and rights in the property. Attorney John Riddout represents Mr. Bottineau.

DELAY LIPPOLD HEARING.

Policeman Who Shot Charles Mitchell to Answer Charges Later.

The case against Mitchell has been continued in the Police Court until September 20. It has been filed with Lippold named as one of the principal witnesses for the government.

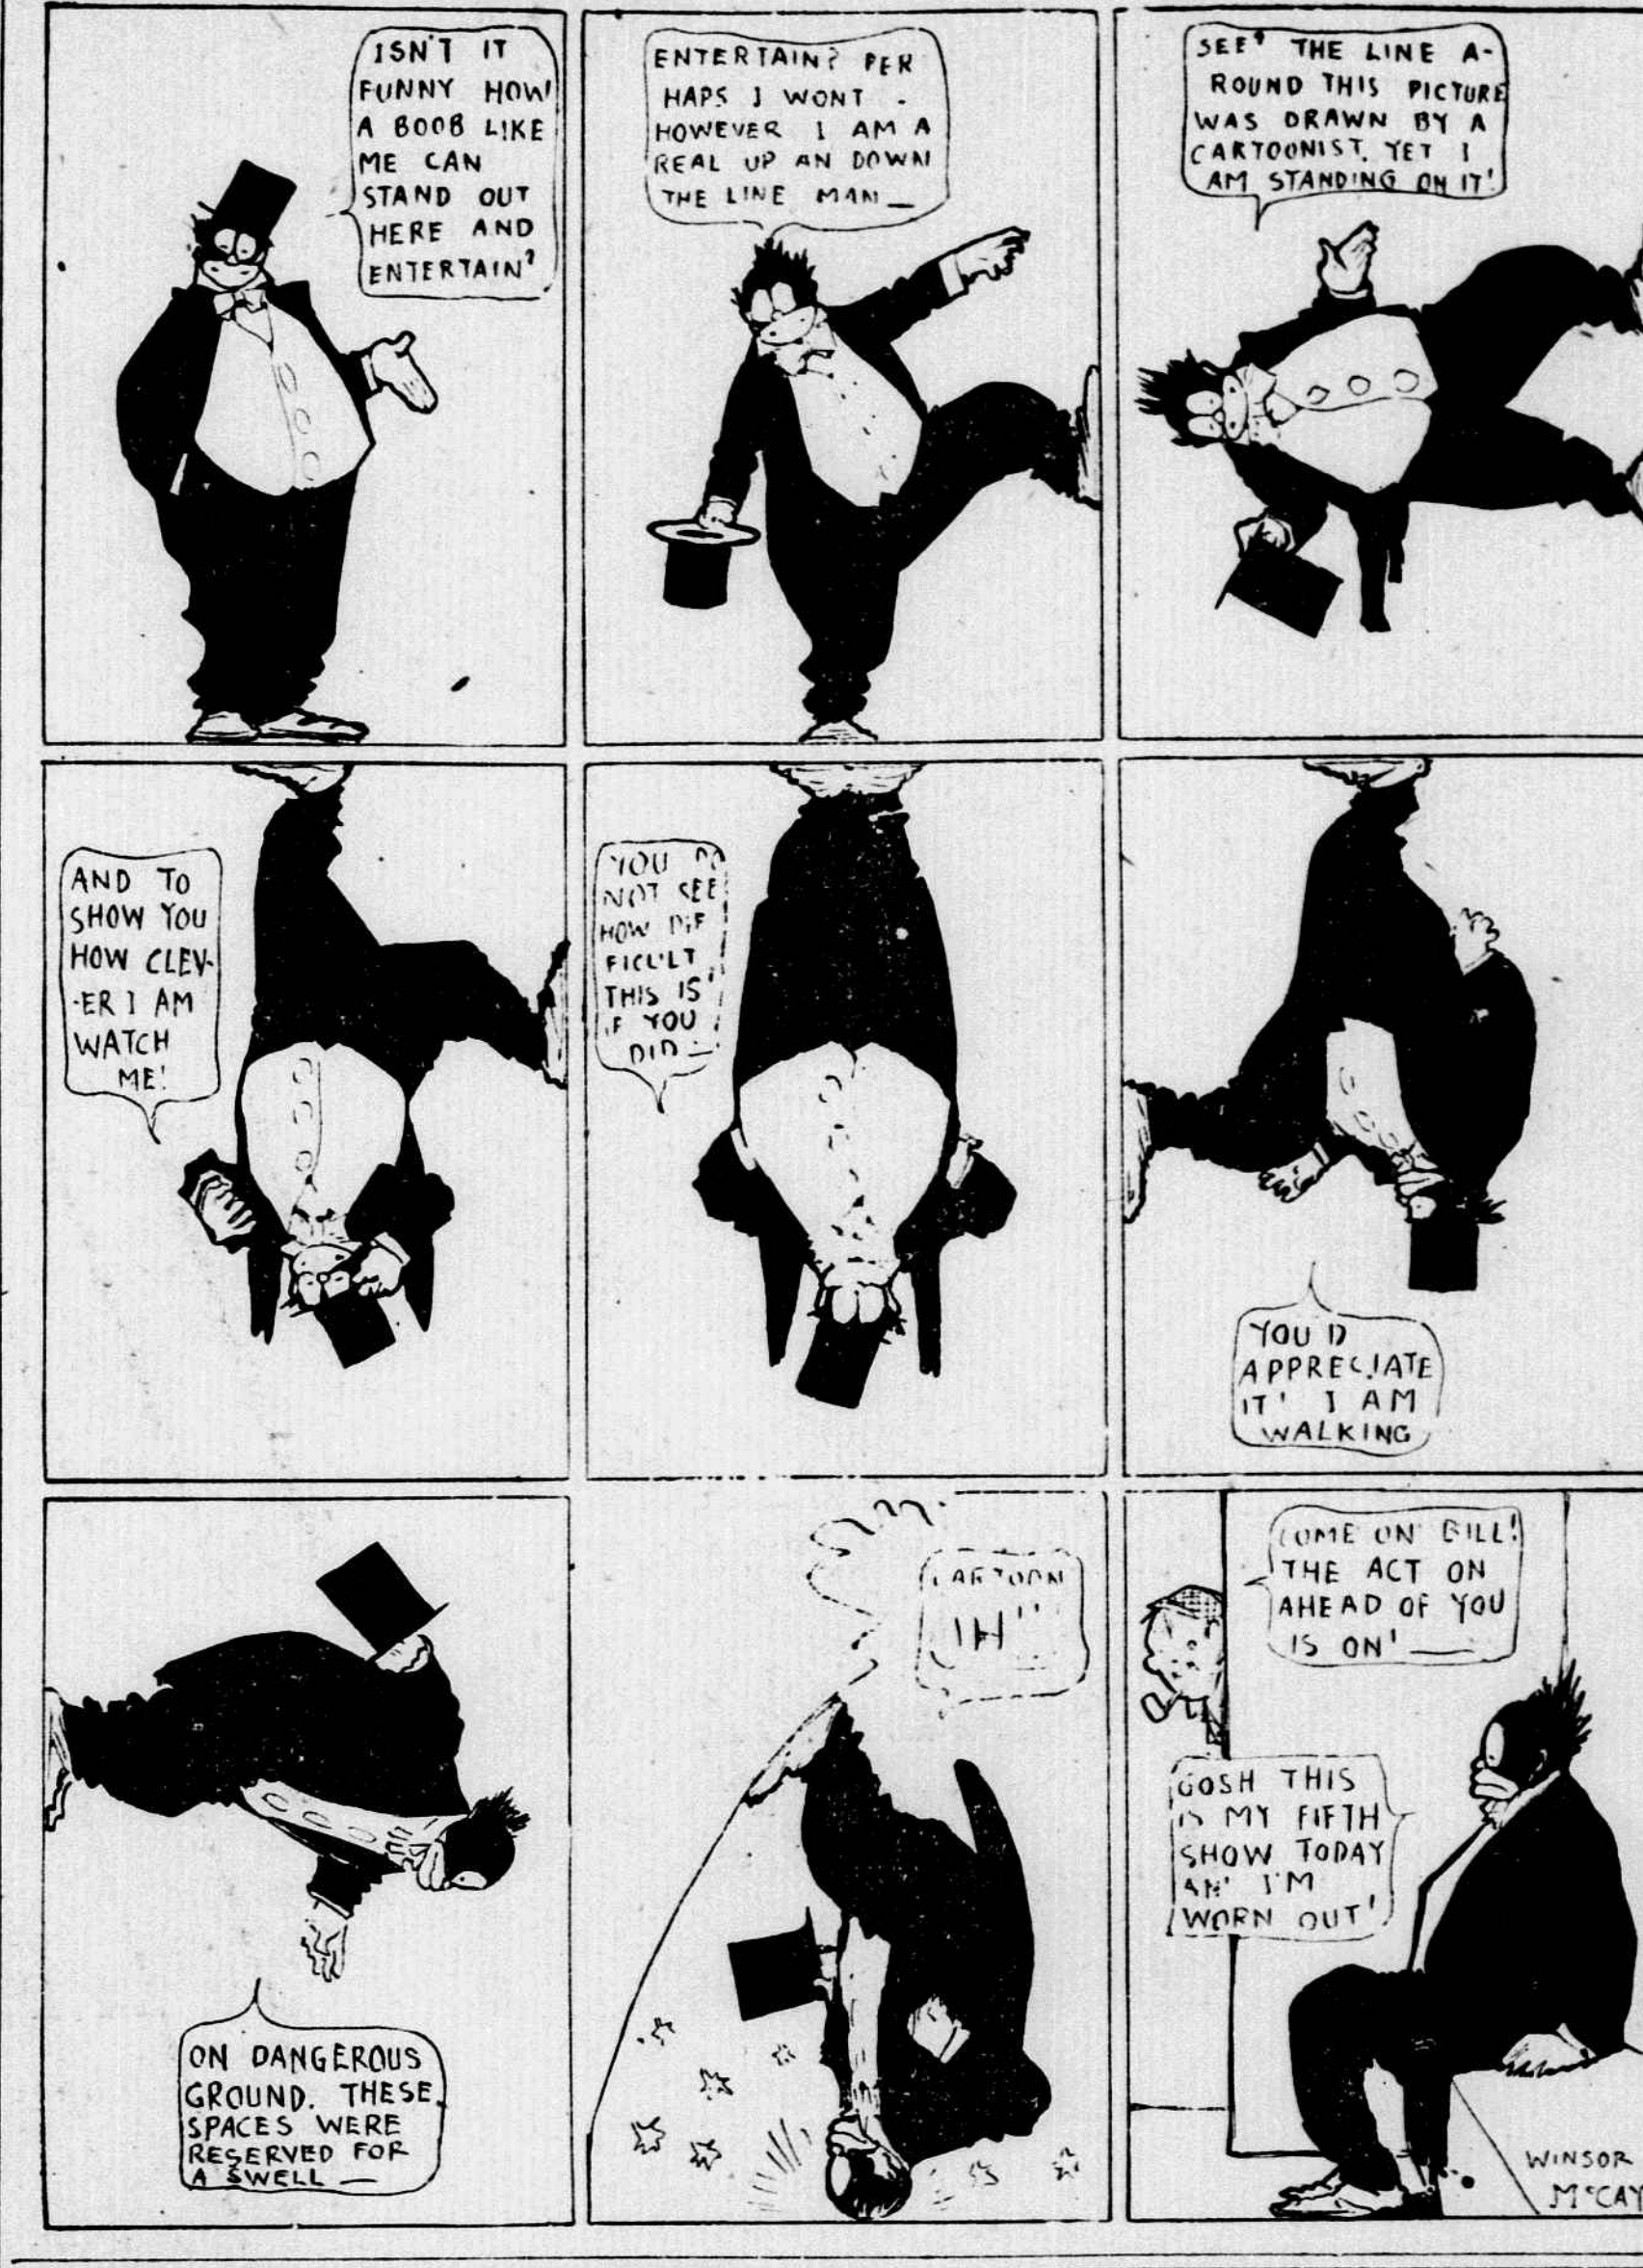

Mitchell was shot in the leg while Lippold, it was explained, made an effort to stop him, after discovering that a paper had been stolen from the front door of the home of Mrs. Maria A. Broderick, 25 Grant place. Lippold was watching the Broderick home at the time for newspaper thieves, under orders of his superiors.

Following the shooting charges were filed against Lippold. The case is table before the Police Court.
